

Analysis and Design of Antenna Measurement Ranges

Dr. Vince Rodriguez

Antenna measurement ranges are complex systems. In this presentation, a survey of the approaches to analyze the performance of the range is provided. These may seem to be rather crude approaches, but the complexities and the variations of the materials that are used in the ranges make the use of very complex methods not impossible but very time-consuming given the uncertainties involved in the measurement for the validation of these systems.